

I grew up in Edmonds,

and love this magical place: our charming neighborhoods, our natural beauty, and our small-town sense of community.

Today, Edmonds is a special city, because for many years, we've offered our residents something special: the opportunity to build a good life, of comfort, dignity, and security.

This “Edmonds dream” is why we're a place that people are proud to call home, no matter what brought us here. I'm running for Edmonds City Council because I want to make sure it sticks around.

That means building an Edmonds where our police officers and teachers can afford to be our neighbors. Protecting and enhancing our green spaces & natural ecosystems. Ensuring our streets and sidewalks are safe and comfortable, for all ages. Supporting small businesses, entrepreneurs, and cultural exchange.

To get there, our city needs informed leadership, and a positive vision for our future. I've listened, learned, and done the work around town to offer both. This November, I humbly ask for your vote to serve you on City Council position #4.

That means focusing on three things:

It should be easy to get around Edmonds.

Getting around Edmonds should be simple, whether you're 8 or 80. We need intentional investment into our streets and sidewalks, to make it easier to walk, bike, drive, and take transit: it'll save us time & money, and keep traffic minimal as we grow.

I grew up helping to restore our forests and streams. On Council, I'll prioritize public health and safety. There's no place for crime or pollution in Edmonds – every neighborhood should have the support it needs to breathe easy.

Edmonds should be clean and green.

Starting out? Hoping to stay put? You deserve options in Edmonds.

The people who shape our city should be able to live here: teachers, nurses, young families, long-time residents on fixed incomes. I'll work with local partners to build beautiful homes for every income level, and slow the growth of housing costs, because we're better together.
